Waste Management, Inc, ("WMI") is a publicly-traded company listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Because WMI is a publicly-traded company, we must rely on stockholders to make required annual filings with the SEC disclosing that they have beneficial ownership in excess of 5% of WMI's common stock.

As a publicly-traded company, WMI has no internal information about, or control over, its third-party shareholders. Based on the most recent filings with the SEC, and the number of WMI shares of Common Stock outstanding on March 19, 2019:

- The Vanguard Group has beneficial ownership of 8.4% of WMI's Common Stock, as a result of serving as investment manager of collective trust accounts and other investment offerings. WMI has no access to information about the ownership structure of The Vanguard Group, other than as is publicly-available on its webpage, as follows:

Typical investment management companies are owned by outside stockholders. These companies have to charge fees to pay their owners, which can reduce investors' returns.

At Vanguard, there are no outside owners, and therefore, no conflicting loyalties. The company is owned by its funds, which in turn are owned by their shareholders—including you, if you're a Vanguard fund investor. Our unique client-owned structure allows us to return profits to our fund shareholders in the form of lower expenses. Low costs help our clients keep more of their returns, which can help them earn more money over time.

In other words, Vanguard is structured as a "mutual" mutual fund company. Our interests are completely aligned with those of our clients. We never have to weigh what's best for clients against what's best for the company's owners, because they are one and the same.

Investors around the world can benefit from the result: stability, transparency, long-term perspective, rigorous risk management, low costs, and a bedrock commitment to their best interests. No wonder our clients have proven to be extraordinarily loyal.

- William H. Gates, III has beneficial ownership of 7.8% of WMI's Common Stock (through his control of Cascade Investments, L.L.C. and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation Trust).

We also note that changes of ownership in WMI's stock are recorded electronically through the Depository Trust Company ("DTC") book-entry system. Under this system, WMI stock is issued to Cede & Co., which is the nominee of DTC and appears as the record owner of are than the majority of WMI's common stock. However, Cede & Co., is not an actual party in interest and has no aspects of beneficial ownership; rather, Cede & Co. serves only as an intermediary holder on behalf of the beneficial owners for administrative purposes.
