Explain:

In June 2010, an employee of NTT DATA was charged with providing improper inducements to a public official. The employee was alleged to have given an employee in the Japan Patent Office a series of taxi vouchers, amounting roughly to USD 30,000 over the course of four years. In September, the Tokyo District Court granted a suspended sentence for the person, reasoning that he had no criminal record, and he had already lost his position and was deeply regretful of what he had done. As a result of the formal charges, a number of national and regional government offices and administrative agencies in Japan removed NTT DATA from their vendor lists temporarily. Following the incident, the company implemented and maintained the steps indicated in the additional information included with NTT DATA's EDS to prevent similar incidents, none of which have occurred since these measures were put into effect. In addition, NTT DATA was restored to customer vendor lists by the end of FY 2012.

Compliance

Compliance Promotion Structure

Stronger Compliance Centered on the NTT DATA Group Code of Ethics

NTT DATA established the NTT DATA Group Code of Ethics in 1998 as the foundation of our approach to corporate ethics. We strive for the thorough awareness of and adherence the Code of Ethics by everyone throughout the Group.

Nonetheless, in June 2010 a former NTT DATA employee was arrested and charged on suspicion of bribery. This demonstrated to us that our efforts to achieve awareness of and adherence to corporate ethics may not have been sufficient, leading us to revise our compliance training in an effort to improve awareness among our employees. We have also composed English and Chinese editions of our NTT DATA Group Code of Ethics for distribution to our overseas Group companies.

These efforts were reported on and discussed at the April 2011 meeting of the Corporate Ethics Committee, which is chaired by our Chief Risk Officer. The Committee resolved to continue these efforts, and to conduct regular compliance assessments of all employees so as to verify the degree of adherence to compliance principles among our staff, as well as to improve awareness. We will continue to seek more thorough adherence to corporate ethics and to strengthen legal compliance.

Incidence of Bribery by Former Employee, and Status of Measures to Prevent Recurrence

In June 2010, a former employee of our company was arrested on suspicion of attempting to bribe a former Japan Patent Office official.

Upon learning of the incident, we immediately set up an internal investigation committee headed by the president to confirm facts and launch an internal investigation. Later, an outside experts verification committee was established to objectively verify the findings of the internal investigation committee and its proposed measures to prevent recurrence. Their findings were announced in September, and in addition NTT DATA issued a Declaration of Compliance*2 both within the company and externally. At the same time, we established the Recurrence Prevention Countermeasures Management Committee to engage in early and assured implementation of recurrence prevention measures.

In addition to efforts to expand and strengthen awareness and education concerning compliance and corporate ethics, NTT DATA's recurrence prevention measures include revision of personnel placement and treatment, revision of the procedures for taxi ticket use and entertainment outlays, and efforts to reinforce our internal auditing. We incorporated these measures in our work processes. In addition to continuing to pursue efforts to prevent recurrence, the Corporate Ethics Committee plans to confirm the status of incorporation of these measures.

*2 For more information about the Declaration of Compliance, please refer to the CSR Report 2011 website.
